MEYERS THE NEW CHAIRMAN

Of the Board of Supervisors and the New Committees
Named by Him

BEAT EDWARDS 8 TO 12

Details of Committee Appointments and Men Who Will Transact the Business
the Coming Year

Supervisor H. W. Meyers of Fremont was elected chairman of the new board of Supervisors at the special meeting for organization held Monday afternoon in the court house. He defeated the only other candidate, H. C. Edwards by a vote of 12 to 8, hence there was but one ballot cast. Clarke and Graham acted as tellers.

Mr. Meyers' victory was accepted with general satisfaction throughout the county as he is one of the oldest and most respected supervisors on the board, this being his thirteenth year. He is recognized as one of the most conscientious and hard working members, strictly honest and on the square, and while he did not make the least effort to land the honor his friends fully appreciating his qualification for the position, made the canvas for him with the result that he received the requisite number of votes to place him in the office which he will fill with honor and distinction, with credit to himself and satisfaction to all.

On motion, the new chairman after he had taken the gavel from retiring Chairman Horenberger, was authorized to name a committee of three to draw up rules for the board and he named Graham, Clarke and Ficke.

The main feature of the meeting was the appointment of the committees, and the following is the list of appointments made:

County farm—Graham, Conrad, Welch.
County Farm Auditing—Blackler, Eger, Masther.
Erroneous Assessments—Ferry, Demorest, Brook.
Education—Clark, Edwards, Chittenden.
Election Precincts—Edwards, Kennedy, Ferry.
Fees and Salaries—Demorest, Wynn, Clark.
Finance—Brooks, Prior, Ficke.
Judges of Election—Eger, Blackler, Deacon.
Judiciary—Kennedy, Chittenden, Edwards.
License—Maether, Horenberger, Graham.
Miscellaneous Claims—Kirchner, Brooks, Wynn.
Printing—Horenberger, Maether, Demorest.
Purchasing—Conrad, Ficke, Horenberger.
Public Buildings—Deacon, Welch, Prior.
Poor—Prior, Kirchner, Conrad.
State Charities—Chittenden, Ferry, Blackler.
Swamp Lands—Welch, Deacon, Eger.
Settlement with County Treasurer and County Clerk—Wynn, Clark, Kirchner.
Settlement with Sheriff and Circuit Clerk—Ficke, Graham, Kennedy.

Saved From The Grave.

"I had about given up hope, after nearly four years of suffering from a severe lung trouble," writes Mrs. M. L. Dix, of Clarksville, Tenn. "Often the pain in my chest would be almost unbearable and I could not do any work, but Dr. King's New Discovery has made me feel like a new person. Its best medicine made for the throat and lungs." Obsolete coughs, stubborn colds hay fever, lagrippe, asthma, croup, bronchitis and hemorrhages, hoarseness and whooping cough, yield quickly to this wonderful medicine. Try it. 50c and $1.00. Trail bottles free. Guaranteed by J. H. Swan.

Seattle Can Be Made Seaport.
Government engineers have reported that Seattle can be made a seaport by cutting a canal to Puget sound by way of the Salmon bay, at a cost of about $3,500,000.

H. GEVER DIES SUDDENLY

Death Due to Heart Trouble. Funeral Held Wednesday.

On Monday at his home at Liberty Corners, occurred the sudden death of Henry Gever, a well known and highly respected farmer, in that community. He was about fifty years of age and the cause of his death was heart disease. He had resided upon the same farm upon which he died for about twelve years and was a man well liked and of a high standing among his neighbors and associates. He leave to mourn his loss a widow and three children.

The funeral was held at the Liberty church Wednesday afternoon under the auspices of the Woodmen of which order he was a member, with Rev. Wilcox officiating. It was one of the largest attended funerals that has been witnessed at that place in many years, and showed in a measure the high esteem in which the deceased was held by his many friends. The remains were laid at rest in the Liberty cemetery.

The bereaved family have the sympathy of the community in their sorrow.

VOLIVA MAKES BIG PLANS FOR FUTURE

Without saying very much to the outside world it is said that Wilbur Glenn Voliva is making overtures to take up the whole Zion City estate as soon as possible, thus putting it back into the hands of the faithful as under the Dowie regime.

One of his great plans is said to be to buy up large tracts of farm land near the city, subdivide it and sell it out as individual lots, making the necessary streets etc.

With the culmination of the project it is said that he plans to start industries from time to time in order that Zion City may manufacture nearly everything needed for its own consumption.

A large dairy that will rival the one at Elgin is said to be one of the things planned. He is said to figure that he can make Zion City a center for milk shippers and thus make the city famous all over the county for its butter products.

$100,000 INVESTED IN CANNING PLANT AT GRAYSLAKE

With $100,000 now invested and the plant not yet ready to operate the P. Hohenadel and Company corn canning plant at Grayslake bids fair to be one of the most important county industries. By a deal completed recently the company has acquired the Charles Kuebler farm near Grayslake. Before this it had acquired the Hoffman and Moore farm. Up to the time it bought the Kuebler farm $93,000 had been expended. The most recent purchase raises the total above $100,000.

The company will grow and can corn for the table. The Grayslake cannery has been idle for two years. It then had other owners. Lately the Hohenadels acquired it. They came from Rockford.

FOSTER JOHNSON OF GRASS LAKE CONFESSES TO WIFE MURDER

On the Day of His Wife's Death They Met After a Separation and Walked Along the Shore of Niagara When His Wife Said She Was Going to Suicide

CLAIMS TO HAVE PUSHED HER INTO NIAGARA RIVER

Gave Himself Up to Marshal Hooper and Made Deposition Before Justice of the Peace J. C. James, After Which He Goes to Libertyville and Confesses After Church Services—Believed by Many to be Insane.

Last Saturday morning Marshal Hooper was met with somewhat of a surprise when a man giving his name as Foster Johnson stepped up to him, with the remark that he was a murderer and wanted to make a confession. He was calm and collected, and the Marshal, not knowing just how serious the man might be, escorted him to the office of Justice of the Peace Joseph C. James to whom he made a full confession of his crime. Mr. James took his deposition but at the same time there lurked in his own mind a suspicion that the man might not be just right. However he called State's Attorney Dady by telephone and laid the matter before him, with the result that a telegram was at once sent east asking for information.

Robert Selter, by whom Johnson was employed was communicated with and gave it as his opinion that the man was insane, saying that the Indian had told him the story several times but he believed the fellow was "Daffy" and that he didn't think there was anything to it, as he had previously understood that the man's wife had committed suicide. He also said that he had given Johnson ten dollars that morning when he left his place with the avowed intention of going to Chicago.

Others believed the man to be out of his mind and his confession was not thought to bear enough weight to warrant his being taken into custody.

After leaving the office of the Justice he went to one of the hotels and after partaking of dinner strolled out and was later found to have disappeared. Developments showed that he had walked to Lake Villa and boarded a train a little time later landing at Libertyville, where he was the central figure in a most dramatic scene in the Methodist church Sunday morning. Coming to the front at the end of the service and announcing his conversion he begged Rev. Whipple for a chance to make a full confession of his sins. Following assent, he told substantially the same story of the murder of his wife as he had previously related here, and begged the minister for refuge for the day and night. The minister told him to return to Antioch and give himself up. Johnson instead of returning here, walked to Waukegan and did the thing advised.

He reached there Monday morning and Monday evening walked into the police station and surrendered himself to the officers and was locked up.

His own story of the crime, which he told in practically the same words each time he made a confession, is in substance as follows: "My name is Foster Johnson, I am a full blooded Indian, I am 44 years of age and was born on the Tuscaurora reservation nine miles from Niagara Falls, where my mother and my sister, Nellie still reside. I have also a brother William Johnson, on the reservation. Sanborn is the nearest railroad station, it is on the New Central. She storekeeper at the reservation when I committed the crime was Holland Patterson. I own fifteen acres of reservation land.

The thing that made me confess was that before I killed her and when she told me that she intended to commit suicide, my wife asked me for a nice gravestone and I promised her that I would get it. I have never done so and it has haunted me. I see her dead in the river in my dreams and have hardly enjoyed a peaceful night's sleep since I killed her.

My wife's name was Emma Williams and she, like myself, was of the Tuscaurora tribe. We lived together at first for two years, when jealously on my part separated us. One boy aged three months died. We lived together, off and on for twelve years, and then in 1904 I left her to take a job apple picking with her brother who had married my sister. We both of us lived with women not our wives up to the time of the tragedy.

On the day of the death my wife met me in a saloon. There was then a convention on at Niagara Falls. She asked me to buy her a drink and to support her through the winter. I said I would but taxed her with offenses I suspected with other men and she confessed.

Then she asked me to take a walk with her and we went to the American side of the Falls. There she threatened to end it all. I do not know what came over me, a blind fit of anger perhaps, but I pushed her into the river with a kick. She did not scream, did not struggle. She simply covered her face with her shawl and drifted down stream.

I went to Rochester and worked on a farm for two weeks, then I went to Wheeling, W. Va., and for a time lived with a woman named Ida Robinson. I then returned to the reservation, where my family told me how the body of my wife had been found, about October 23, and how the verdict of the coroner's jury was one of suicide. I told them what I had done and they told me to keep still, and not to tell. They feared for me.

Many nights I have been unable to sleep and the thought of the way I killed my wife burns deeply. It was God compelled me to come here."

He recited in full the details of the events preceding the death of his wife on the day that he pushed her into the river above the falls. He said he wanted to be taken back for trial in order to escape committing suicide. He had escaped suspicion in connection with her death as the coroner's jury had returned a verdict of suicide after the finding of the woman's body.

After telling his story, Johnson was placed in custody, and Sheriff Griffin telegraphed to Lockport, N. Y. but the sheriff there failed to have any records of the Johnson death and wired back that he did not want the man. Later however a special dispatch from Niagara Falls verified completely the statements of Johnson in regard to the fact that his wife met her death in the river October 4, 1904. The dispatch leaves little room to doubt that he is the husband of Mrs. Emma Williams Johnson, who up to October 4, 1904, sold beadwork and other Indian novelties in the state park. On that day the woman disappeared. A number of tourists reported to the reservation authorities that they had seen the body of a woman go over the falls on that night and the next day Mrs. Johnson's souvenir stand was found deserted. On October 13 Sampson Williams, the woman's brother reported that she was missing and October 23 the body of a woman was taken from the river on the Canadian side of the whirlpool. On October 25 the body was identified as that of Mrs. Johnson. On October 27, Hart Slocum then coroner held an inquest and told the police at that time that she and her husband had had several quarrels just before her disappearance.

Some to whom Johnson has told his story believe the man is sincere and others believe that the whole matter is merely a hallucination of a deranged mind.

Marshal Hooper says that the man told the straightest story he ever heard and that he believes it to be true.

"I believe Johnson's story said Chief of Police Connelly, of Waukegan, I do not believe him insane and do not think that he is trying to work any game. Up to the present time the authorities at Niagara have not decided as to whether they want Johnson or not, but they are carrying on a thorough investigation and it is expected that they will render their decision within the next few days.

DIDN'T LIKE CHARIVARI

Wadsworth Youth Seeks Arrest of Those Connected With the Affair.

A charivari which assumed serious proportions took place at Wadsworth Thursday evening, following the marriage of Matt Meyers to Mary Haggerty and, while the bridesroom has sought to have two dozen young men arrested for their part in the affair, State's Attorney Dady discouraged him and he finally decided to let matters drop.

But, at that, it was one of the worst charivaries the county has seen in years, marked by an attack on the bridesroom, by his threat to shoot the crowd, etc.

The crowd gathered at the house shortly after the ceremony and made all sorts of noise, carrying it far into the night.

Finally Meyers appeared before the crowd with a shot gun in his hands and told the men if they did not clear out he would shoot them at once.

Instead of obeying, they took the shot gun from the groom after a desperate fight during which it was feared the gun might go off and hurt somebody. He then made his escape into the barn and locked the doors when they tried to bring him out. He then sought refuge in the hay loft when the men tried to get at him and he hid under the hay for some time.

Finally his bride and other women managed to get him out of the rear door of the barn and into the house where he remained until the crowd dispersed.

Meyers then went to Gurnee to Constable Gray's home and asked the latter to arrest the men who took part. The constable refused to do so with out warrants and Meyers went home.

Later he went to Waukegan with a long list of names of the men who were connected with the affair and asked an attorney to proceed against the bunch but he was discouraged and advised to let the matter drop, and after a time he consented to do so.

BRISTOL

Mias Josie Berger visited at the home of William Lohans several days last week.

Mrs. Cora Lavay and children spent Sunday at Arthur Halle's at Pleasant Prairie.

Mr. and Mrs. Reinhold, Gust, Fred and Hattie Bottley of Alden were over Sunday visitors at A. H. Bottley.

The recent frosts and snow, it is claimed, has done considerable damage to the budding fruit trees in this section.

The Mystic Worker lodge will give a box social next Friday evening, April 22. Boxes will be sold at auction. Every body come and have a good social time.

The Bristol Telephone company unloaded two cars of poles this week which will be used in connecting more lines and repair some of the old that have not already been repled.

A number of young folks pleasantly surprised Freddie Parkins Monday night in honor of his birthday. Games were played, refreshments served and several hours enjoyably spent.

Seventy thousand census enumerators were turned loose on the 15th, including our own H. B. Gaines, for the purpose of numbering the people of the United States, and compelling every old maid to tell the truth about her age.

Mrs. Joslyn, who has been in the hospital at Wales, Wis., all winter for treatment, is expected here this week and is pronounced cured, which her many friends will be glad to hear. After visiting here she will return to her husband at Kameack, Canada.

The Demon Of The Air

is the germ of lagrippe, that, breathed in, brings, suffering to thousands. Its after effects are weakness, nervousness, lack of appetite, energy and ambition, with disordered liver and kidneys. The greatest need then is electric bitters, the splendid tonic, blood purifier and regulator of Stomach, liver and kidneys. Thousands have proved that they wonderfully strengthen the nerves, build up the system and restore health and good spirits after an attack of grip. If suffering, try them. Only 50c. ANTIOCH VILLAGE ELECTION

Progressive Petition Ticket Wins Over Two Petition and Caucus Tickets

HOT FIGHT AT LAKE VILLA

Regular Caucus Ticket at Lake Villa Was Defeated by Writing in All the Candidates Names

At the village election held Tuesday much excitement was manifested throughout the day. There were four tickets in the field with eight candidates for village trustees, of which there were three to be elected, consequently there was keen competition throughout the whole affair.

The regular "Caucus ticket" as it at first stood was composed of B. F. Naber, J. H. Reading and Herman Tenbroggen as trustees, and L. M. Hughes for village clerk and J. E. Brook as treasurer. However all with the exception of Tenbroggen withdrew and later together with Ray L. Hubbard went on the "Progressive ticket" by petition. The "Citizens ticket" also by petition was composed of Wm. Keulman, M. J. Webber and C. F. Richards, while W. H. Osmond stood alone on the "Independent ticket" also by petition.

The "Progressive Ticket" won out with ease, the lowest vote that it showed being 69, while the highest on any other ticket was only 27. Hughes and Brook had no opposition. The full result of the election in figures is as follows:

The Master of Craven

SYNOPSIS.

Basil Tempest, world's greatest poet and novelist, refusing further to be harassed, shuts himself up in Craven, his country home. His gloomy meditations are broken by the admission of an American, Lucy Carew, who has come to England to get a study of the author, but more especially a synopsis of his new work. Tempest, angry at being disturbed, declares he will write no more, and asks Lucy to go. Repenting his rudeness in sending her out at night in the rain, Tempest hastens after her, but she refuses to return to Craven with him and takes lodging with a cottager. Next morning Lucy receives an apology from Tempest and an offer to assist her in writing her essay. Tempest dictates to Lucy, who listens spellbound as she writes. Lucy decides to go to London, but Tempest induces her to remain and read her manuscript to him. Lucy declines an invitation to dine with Tempest, who in anger and disappointment, goes to London. He asks Lady Ormond, with whom his name has been linked, to leave her husband, promising to marry her when the husband gets a divorce. She insists on the divorce first. Tempest departs for Craven. He burns Lady Ormond's picture after forming a reluctant opinion of that lady from Lucy. The latter consents to continue the writing. Tempest, who in the letters and photographs of Lady Ormond, finds great pleasure in Lucy's presence as their work progresses. He takes her to Pentenham castle, where unexpectedly he meets Lady Ormond.

CHAPTER VI.

Tempest tortured himself with wondering whether or not Miss Carew had heard and how much. If she had heard, would it affect her, and why? That it would not be indifferent to her he was too versed in women not to mark, and he read with delight all that this clear-eyed girl revealed.

"If I could have a right to her, would I be so quick to understand her? Probably not! It is simply because she is safe from me that I am tortured by a sight of bliss I can never claim. If things had been so that we might have married I dare say I should have eaten my heart out with doubt regarding her state of mind!"

During the drive from Pentenham to Craven over miles swiftly and easily covered by the heavy-rolling motor Tempest had not been able very satisfactorily to study his companion. Excitement may have blurred his vision; he several times impatiently passed his hand across his eyes, straining to see what change had come to her face. Once he muttered something under his breath which she could not hear—it sounded like an imprecation.

With all his power of making himself delightful he filled the short hour so perfectly as to leave Miss Carew time in which to think and puzzle and to withdraw from him. He made her conscious of herself and of him, and crowded out every possible other person from her mind.

On leaving her at Ramdill's he said nothing whatsoever about seeing her the following day, and before it dawned he had regretted it.

During the early hours he was up at dawn pacing his bedroom; later tramping his study, his face towards the window through which he could catch the first glimpse of Miss Carew when she should appear, he searched the avenue with the eagerness of one who waits for a herald.

Over and over again he murmured: "Well, she has gone! She should have gone long ago. I am quite mad—and have I dared to dream? Letty did a good turn to the child!"

He gathered together the manuscript he had copied in a pile, on the top a sonnet he had written during the last few days. It was half after ten, a good 30 minutes beyond her hour.

"I'll give her another hour to wonder in—be jealous in—and to make up her mind to be late in—then if she fails me, I will scatter these sheets to the wind." He steadfastly watched the unloveliness of the changed November atmosphere.

He had been right in his prediction—the phenomenal beauty of the autumn was gone, and England had settled down into the early winter gloom. In another five minutes Tempest saw her coming up the alley to the terrace steps.

She found him standing by what he called a sacrificial pile of all their work, one hand on it, one stretched out to her, and a radiant welcome on his face:

"I should have waited just one hour more," he said, "and then have destroyed this stuff, Miss Carew."

Between them there was already the embarrassment of intense personal feeling undeclared. His delight at her return was too much for her composure. She turned away with the excuse of taking off her coat and gloves, and to-day she laid aside her hat—for the first time he saw her hair free of covering. It gave him the pleasure of thinking her at home in his room.

When he said brusquely: "I don't want to write to-day, Miss Carew," she flushed painfully.

"No? You did not perhaps expect me?"

"I never dare to expect you—I have never dared. If hope is expectation, then I do. I can't say I didn't look, I was at the window; you saw me?"

"Yes."

"Why do you gather up your gloves again?"

"If you don't care to work?"

"Oh!"—his impatience was boyish. "What a school-mistress! I have worked as you call it, made you work for weeks, a methodical honest labor quite unusual even to me, and yet I have produced no real masterpiece. Can't I have one holiday?"

"We had yesterday."

"We," he laughed, delighted. "We," he emphasized, "will have this morning. Let me rest in the agreeable sense of talking with you—a hour or two." Other words, whose warmth colored even the simple phrase he used, were at his tongue's end.

Miss Carew sat down before her table and her materials and folded her hands over them.

"I have asked you nothing, Miss Carew, during these faithful weeks. I mean about yourself. You must have sometimes thought me selfish."

"No."

"I am," he confessed, "horribly selfish, but that is not the reason—I have not wished to know. You came to me like a dream as it might be, like a fairy godmother out of an old tale on one windy night in the storm—against my will. How rude I was! But you forgive me!" He had drawn near to her. "I like to think of you so—you seemed to have a wand with you, you know; you touched the bewitched fancies in my brain and things came to me again."

Tempest was under a control whose strength only a man of his nearly ungovernable passions knows how to use.

"I've an idea there are no fairy stories in America—at any rate, I don't connect you with anything 3,000 miles away. You said something about careers and working for your living."

Here he stopped. Her slender hands, her slender figure, the grace and femininity of her, coming in contrast with the harsh facts he broached appeared to distress him. "I can't think of money, or the lack of it, in connection with you. I can't believe you are poor, you don't look it."

"Don't think it, please, Mr. Tempest, nor about it. Let me write now, or go."

The presence of Lucy Carew to-day was so grateful to him, her coming so far more than he had let himself hope, his relief that she had not heard the trade at Pentenham, that he could not forego the pleasure it was to move her, to see her eyes glow, to watch her fluttering lids, to mark the evidences of an agitation of which he knew the cause by reason of his own pulse. But he was determined to say nothing to alienate or terrify her, to force a retreat he knew she would do well to make—nothing that should spoil relations far too precious to him to renounce.

"I like to think of you—that you just appeared—got out of a pumpkin chariot at my door! You said something about America, but—"

He was struggling with himself. Since he must not say to her what he wished, what he longed to say, anything else would be an insult.

She had taken up her pen, and he let her write for a time, dictating a few pages for re-copy, then threw them impatiently down.

"If you will let me, I will walk to the Ford with you. We must start now, or you will be very late for Mrs. Ramdill's."

At a little lane well on towards the town where he parted with her he said:

"As long as you live you will never know what you have done for me, and I can't ever tell you—only won't you understand, since such is the fact—that I can't endure to think you have hardships to bear?" His tone and the meaning of his words were plain. She grew cold and pale.

They were quite by themselves in the little lane, Craven behind them and the Ford just at the turn. Tempest took her passive hands to him and pressed them against his breast.

Then, with the gesture she had remarked before, he threw them from him and left her standing there, without another word, alone.

On his return to the house he went straight to Mrs. Henly's little house-keeping room—a cozy, comfortable, homely corner in a wing by itself, almost like a cottage set in the castle's very midst.

Every object had a memory for him.

No sentimental revolution had made an empty room of Mrs. Henly's arched English quarters. Here she had lived a tranquil existence for over forty years, falling heir to the uses and duties of the place when she was a very young woman at the first house-keeper's decade.

Tempest had associations even with the wall-paper's blazing roses and knots of floating streamers, which his child's imagination had untied and retied to find there were no ends, no real continuations, and all the flowers and ribbons fell into confusion in his mind! The mantel clock with its quaint Chinese figures, brought to Mrs. Henly by a sailor brother, had made the little Tempest dream of ships and those distant ports that possessed the maddening fascination of the far-away and the unknown. He had intended joining the nautical man's ship some day, just as he had intended doing at some period everything that amused him or stimulated his life fancy. In the big armchair with its print-covered back and arms Mrs. Henly had held him and soothed his griefs. His own little chair stood by the fireplace as it had for more than thirty years. He had been a sailor in it; it had been a boat, a chariot, a ship of dreams. To the quaint room with its individual odors (Tempest had always thought of woods and forests, and fire and fogs and tea!) he had come stormily with his miseries of boy-love, which he had confided on Mrs. Henly's breast; here, stormily, later, with the miseries of man's love, he had not confided. But never had he gone away without some solace from the homely little room. To-day he came in and shut the door. Mrs. Henly sat knitting in her big chair.

"She's old," he thought for the first. "She's aged very much of late, but she'll stand by me till the end." Then aloud: "Sit still, Henly; don't get up," and Tempest took the corner of the table and sat himself down on it, staring at her.

He was past 40 years old, but only she would have known it. There was no gray in the thick, dark hair that grew close as thatch around his beautiful head. Bodily and mentally he was so vibrant, so magnetic, so strong, that youth seemed inherent in him, and he would never be old. To her, indeed, he had never grown up. His naturally uncontrolled nature made him often like a naughty child, and when he was his more lovable self she called him to her heart "my dear, dear boy." As she said, she had wept tears already so bitter that she would not claim a nearer tie if it could have added salt to their brine. Her master said shortly:

"Henly, she must go."

Mrs. Henly knitted a line in order to collect herself, then put her work down on the table and looked at her master over her glasses. "He speaks of her as if she were the housemaid," she thought.

"I'm heart sorry, Mr. Basil."

"Why," he demanded, rudely, "why?"

"She's a sweet and gentle lady, coming as she does, clinging to the door as I might say; here as she is, day in and out, no one could or does think harm of her."

He exclaimed furiously:

"Harm! how do you dare, Henly, to men—"

"I mean," said the housekeeper, steadily, "that for a young lady alone here—with no mother or friend even—even the Ford would talk; but she bears it in her face what she is—good and true."

"Yes," he interrupted more reasonably, "she does, and good she shall remain. That's why she must go. She must leave Cravenford; no good will come to her for staying on."

"But," interrupted the devoted woman, "to you, Mr. Basil?"

Tempest was forced to smile.

"You would sacrifice anything to that, I think. You have kept silent and patient, never considering her so far, or her reputation, because you thought it was good for me!"

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

Food for Reminiscence.

Twenty-five years hence the Pennsylvania railroad station will give a lot of people a chance to reminisce," said the gray-headed New Yorker. "I was born on the site of the Pennsylvania station, they can tell their acquaintances, and then proceed to give an account of their vicissitudes during the trying time of ovulation to make way for the great improvement."

"That introduction," I was born on the site of such and such a building, is a favorite reminiscence with many men. Even the new buildings afford considerable satisfaction to the fellow who likes to hark back to his birthplace. Why, I heard a man boast the other day that he was born where the Hippodrome now stands. Hotels, churches, theaters, offices—any building to which present interest attaches—are a scaffolding to which men born on that site may tack their stories. The larger and more important the building, the more honest the tone. That being the case, the possibilities of the Pennsylvania station as a future topic of conversation are immeasurable."

Sanctum Confidences.

"Brooks," said Rivers, "can you give me a synonym for 'stuffy'? I've used that word twice already."

"I suppose I can," growled Brooks, "but what's the use?"

"Use? Use? Thanks; that'll do." Thereupon the rattle of the typewriter began again.

So It Is.

"I see where Boston observed 'Apple day.'"

"When is 'Bean day' in Boston?"

"Oh, every day is bean day in Boston."

ROOSEVELT IS ANGRY

DENIES HE AUTHORIZED PINCHOT TO SAY HE WOULD RUN AGAIN.

DECLARES STORY IS FAKE

Colonel Says He Is Sorry Not to Meet Root in Europe—Desires Light on Political Conditions From All Sides.

Vienna.—Theodore Roosevelt was indignant when he learned that a report had been printed in Paris and cabled to America, to the effect that one of the results of his recent conference with Olfford Pinchot was an agreement on his part to use his name as a candidate for the presidency.

The colonel said the story was a pure fake, that neither he nor Olfford Pinchot had said anything that could possibly warrant such a statement.

In this connection Roosevelt said his meeting with Pinchot should not be interpreted as a desire to hear only one side of the conservation controversy. "I want to hear all sides on all questions," the colonel said, "and I shall be glad to see anyone who can enlighten me on political conditions. I am sorry that Senator Root could not come to Europe."

In concluding his remarks regarding the Paris Herald, the colonel said: "As this is the third false statement in the Herald of a similar character, I must absolutely decline to see the representatives of that paper."

Theodore Roosevelt and his son Kermit arrived here Friday morning. A thin haze hung over the Austrian capital when the train bearing Mr. Roosevelt drew into the station. The guest was met by Herr von Mueller, principal secretary of the foreign office, who was there as representative of the Austrian government.

American Ambassador Kereks and others of the staffs of the American embassy and consulate and Baron Hengelmüller von Hengervar, Austro-Hungarian ambassador at Washington.

After an exchange of greetings Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Kereks entered a court carriage and drove directly to the Hotel Kranz. Owing to the earliness of the hour the streets were almost deserted and although the driver and the footman wore the imperial livery the passing of the party attracted no attention.

After breakfast with Henry White, formerly American ambassador to France, who came from Silesia to meet him, Mr. Roosevelt received several Americans who awaited him at the hotel and then drove in the court carriage to the foreign office, on the Ballplatz, and made an official call on Count von Aehrenthal, the foreign minister.

At two o'clock in the afternoon Mr. Roosevelt again entered the court carriage and drove to the Hofburg palace, where he was received in audience by Emperor Francis Joseph. As a special mark of esteem the emperor greeted his guest in his private apartments instead of in the usual audience chamber. As Mr. Roosevelt entered the courtyard the palace guard turned out and rendered him military honors.

The gorgeous banquet given to former President Roosevelt by Emperor Francis Joseph, Saturday at the palace was the final function of royalty in his honor. This event, however, was overshadowed in a measure by a call on Colonel Roosevelt by the papal nuncio to Austria, Mgr. Granillo di Belmonte Pignatelli.

This incident is considered here as being of the greatest significance as a sequel to the Vatican's recent pronouncement.

The nuncio, in full ecclesiastical vestments of his office, and accompanied by his secretary, Mgr. Rosell Stockelper, called upon the former president after the luncheon when Ambassador Kereks gave in his honor.

After being presented by the American ambassador, the papal nuncio and Colonel Roosevelt withdrew. They talked together for twenty minutes, but what transpired it is impossible to state, as both subsequently declined to give any information.

Budapest.—Colonel Theodore Roosevelt and his son Kermit arrived here Sunday evening after spending the day at Pressburg with Count Apponyi.

The count met the visitors at the station with his automobile, in which they proceeded to the count's castle at Eberhart.

One Term Enough Says Taft.

Washington.—Twice President Taft declared to Washington audiences Saturday that one term in the White House is quite sufficient for him. The first time the president made this declaration was in talking to the District of Columbia branch of the American Bankers' association. He made it again in the course of a talk to a gathering of Washington's quota of the Psi Upsilon fraternity. Both times the president spoke in joking fashion, but under the smile there appeared to be much seriousness.

Baseball Player Killed.

Freeburg, Ill.—William Schmitt, 28, member of Freeburg's baseball team, was killed here Sunday while playing with his team against a St. Louis club. A thrown ball from the St. Louis pitcher hit him over the heart.

Mexican Diplomat Is Dead.

Mexico City.—Ignacio Mariscal, secretary of foreign relations and Mexico's great diplomat, died here Saturday. Death was due to pneumonia and was unexpected.

MASKED MEN HOLD UP TRAIN

SOUTHERN PACIFIC OVERLAND ROBBED NEAR BENICIA, CAL.

Amount of Loot Secured Not Known—Nine Sacks of Registered Mail Stolen.

Benicia, Cal.—The China-Japan mail train, which left San Francisco over the Southern Pacific railway for the east at nine o'clock Saturday night, was held up by two masked men at Sprig, two miles east of here, and robbed of nine pouches of registered mail.

The train carried no express matter. Four of the pouches have been recovered, but the robbers rifled the others and now are hiding in the hills and canyons between Martinez and Oakland. Sheriff's posse from two counties, detectives and post office inspectors on horses and in automobiles are engaged in the man hunt. The robbers were well armed and a battle is anticipated.

The passengers on the train were not disturbed. After getting the mail sacks, the robbers cut the engine loose from the train and sent it wild, throttle open, down the main track to the east.

In the direct path of the engine was a section of passenger train No. 5, west-bound, heavily loaded. But for the presence of mind of a telegraph operator at Suisun a serious collision would have taken place. The engine was thrown into a ditch in the nick of time.

The train robbery is the first in California for several years. It was plotted and executed in daring, spectacular fashion.

ARMSTRONG COMPANY IS HIT

Insurance Actuary Charges Nearly $600,000 Is Missing From Treasury of Casualty Concern.

Charleston, W. Va.—That the active managers of the Consolidated Casualty company before its reorganization here this week, under direction of the insurance department of West Virginia, collected $757,114 in one year and nine months, of which only $101,637 remains, and that they made false entries on the books of the company and false returns to the insurance department of the state, are charges in the report of John F. Roche of New York, consulting actuary to the insurance department, made public Friday.

The actuary found that the entire management of the company was in the hands of Robert B. Armstrong of Chicago, president; C. H. Burns, vice-president, and A. S. Mitchell, secretary and treasurer, as officers, and of Armstrong, Burns and Mitchell D. Follanbee as the executive committee.

The actuary's report states that the condition of the company's books was such that a correct audit is almost impossible. Among irregularities charged are cancellation of stock issued, a collection of partial payments for which nothing was issued, and the issuing of stock which was not paid for.

The report recites that President Armstrong drew a salary of $1,000 per month. "June 30, 1909," the report says, "it was discovered that he (Armstrong) had overdrawn his salary $2,312."

STATE TACKLES OIL TRUST

Government Holds Back to Give Tennessee Chance in United States Supreme Court.

Washington, D. C.—The government has for the moment given way to let the state of Tennessee wrestle with the Standard Oil in the arena of the Supreme court of the United States.

While the main attack upon the great oil corporation under the federal anti-trust law has been deferred for weeks, or perhaps even months, by the court's decision that the case must be argued, a subsidiary battle will be fought before the court this week over the attempt of Tennessee to oust the Standard from doing business there because of alleged violation of the anti-trust statute of that state.

The state courts have held against the corporation, which now appeals to the federal supreme court from the judgment of ouster.

THREE ARE DEAD IN WRECK

Six Others Fatally Hurt and Like Number Are Missing—Freight Train Leaps Track.

Spokane, Wash.—As a result of a disastrous wreck on the Northern Pacific railroad three miles west of Spokane Thursday, three men are dead, six are probably fatally injured and six others are unaccounted for.

It is supposed that the mangled remains of the missing will be found in the tangled mass of wreckage.

Eye witnesses state that a freight train not under control, and which had reached a speed of 60 miles an hour, was suddenly seen to leap into the air and disappear in a cloud of dust and debris.

Bragg Defeat Oldfield.

Los Angeles, Cal.—A new world's champion was made at the Moler-drome Sunday when Caleb S. Bragg, the millionaire boy amateur automobile driver, defeated Barney Oldfield in a two-mile race for a purse of $2,000 and additional silver trophies, with huge side bets registered.

Will Elect United States Senator.

Jackson, Miss.—The Mississippi legislature Saturday adopted the resolution that a primary election for United States senator be called.

NEW THEORY IS

RAPIDLY SPREADING

OVER COUNTRY

L. T. Cooper's theory concerning the human stomach, which he claims to prove, with his new medicine, is being given more respect and comment every day.

Cooper claims that 90 per cent. of all ill health is due to stomach trouble. When interviewed about his theory recently, he said: "Stomach trouble is the great curse of the 20th century so far as the civilized races are concerned. Practically all of the chronic ill health of this generation is caused by abnormal stomach conditions. In earlier days, when the human race was closer to nature, and men and women worked all day out of doors, digging their frugal existence from the soil, the tired, drooping, half-sick people that are now so common, did not exist."

"To be sure, there was sickness in those days, but it was of a virulent character, and only temporary. There was none of this half-sick condition all the time with which so many are afflicted nowadays."

"I know positively that every bit of this chronic ill health is caused by stomach trouble. The human stomach in civilized people today is degenerate. It lacks tone and strength. This weakness has gradually come through a sedentary existence. I further know that few people can be sick with the digestive apparatus in perfect shape. The sole reason for my success is because my New Discovery medicine tones the stomach up to required strength in about six weeks' time. That is why I have had more people come and thank me wherever I have gone to introduce my medicine, than I have had time to talk with."

Among the immense numbers of people who are now strong believers in Cooper's theory and medicine is Mrs. M. E. Dolano, a prominent resident of the suburb of Brookline, Boston, Mass. She says: "For several years I was broken in health, caused primarily by stomach and nerve troubles. I gradually became worse, until recently I was compelled to go without solid food for days at a time. I had sour stomach, palpitation of the nerves of stomach and heart, dyspepsia, and extreme nervousness. I suffered terribly with insomnia, and my liver, bowels and whole system gradually became deranged. I felt instant relief the first day I began this Cooper medicine. I now feel like a new being. Today I walked all over town, shopping—something I have not done for years."

"I make this statement wholly from a sense of duty. I feel I owe it to anyone who might find relief and renewed happiness as I have done."

Cooper's New Discovery is sold by all druggists. If your druggist cannot supply you, we will forward you the name of a druggist in your city who will. Don't accept 'something just as good.'—The Cooper Medicine Co., Dayton, Ohio.

Good Law That Should Be Enforced.

Anti-spitting ordinances, laws and regulations in more than five-eighths of the cities and towns of the country are not enforced as they should be, alleges the National Association for the Study of Tuberculosis in a recent report. While most of the larger cities of the United States have such laws on their books, in the great majority of cases they are ignored or overlooked. The report covers in detail the enforcement of the anti-spitting ordinances in 80 of the largest cities in the country. During the year 1909 in these 80 cities, 3,421 arrests were made for violation of the laws regarding spitting in public places. Over 2,900 convictions were secured and $4,100.87 was collected in fines.

$100 Reward, $100.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one druggist who has been able to cure in all his cases, and that is Calvary. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer one hundred dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Queer Attribute of Salmon.

Only about 20 per cent. of salmon spawn before they return up the river from the sea, and those that do return after spawning are coarse, and, when cut up, white in the flesh; in fact, are known as bull trout, for so-called "bull trout" are not a different kind of fish, but are plainly salmon which have spawned.

ANTIOCH SCHOOL NOTES

Ask M. B. how to pronounce finis-terre.

Revels in almost every study are taking place.

The fifth grade finished their physiology on Wednesday.

The Algebra class are studying quon-tients and square root.

The English History class are study-ing the reign of James II.

The Success Club will have an Arbor Day program on Friday Apr. 22.

Miss Williams took her pupils of the third room "flowering" last Friday.

First year English class have started the study of Tennyson's "Princess".

The Success Club had no meeting on Wednesday but will meet on Friday in-stead.

Ask the base-ball fans whether the game of Wednesday morning recess was exciting.

The Latin class translated "The In-fant Prodigy" from Latin to English on Tuesday.

The eighth grade have received the review pamphlets and are studying them in "dead earnest."

The Success club intend to purchase books and pictures and make several improvements for each of the rooms be-fore school closes, with the money they have earned this year.

Prof. Bowden of the Waukegan high school delivered a lecture in the Crystal theater last Friday night on Halley's Comet, giving several stereopticon views of the famous comet to illustrate his talk.

The address proved an interesting one, the speaker showing that he was well versed to speak on the subject. The views which were made by Mr. Bowden were also excellent.

The speaker told of the first concep-tions of astronomy on the part of the ancient Egyptians, declaring that it was their belief that the sun was a celestial body, which with other bodies of the universe, traveled down the Nile in a huge boat.

After a time they became better versed in the subject and began the study of astrology, showing that the re-lation of the stars to the earth and to the inhabitants of the world.

He told of the largest observatory in the United States, located at Mt. Ham-ilton, Col., where the largest telescope in the world has been installed, also telling of the splendid observatory at Lake Geneva, Wis., known as the Yerkes observatory.

Halley's comet, he said, was not dis-covered by Halley, but it was Halley who figured out how often the comet would pass within the vision of the earth, etc. This was in an effort to equal the reputation of Sir Isaac New-ton. Halley made his discovery in 1696.

Prof. Bowden said it was a mistaken idea that comets are dangerous. They are composed, he said, of merely vol-atile, gaseous vapors and the earth would not be harmed if it passed com-pletely through one of these bodies.

Halley's comet is visible once every 74 years for a period of about 14 days. It has been estimated that its tail is one hundred million miles long and that the body travels at the rate of 300 miles a second.

Mr. Bowden's talk was so interesting that the hearers were held in wrapt at-tention until its close. He has promised to visit us again next year and give his lecture "Cartoons and Cartooning" free of charge (illustrated).

Women as Well as Men are Made Miserable by Kidney and Bladder Trouble.

Kidney trouble preys upon the mind, discourages and lessens ambition, beauty, vigor and cheerfulness soon disappear when the kidneys are out of order or dis-eased.

Kidney trouble has become so prevalent that it is not uncom-mon for a child to be born afflicted with weak kidneys. If the child urinates too often, if the urine scalds the flesh, or if, when the child reaches an age when it should be able to control the passage, it is yet afflicted with bed-wetting, depend upon it, the cause of the difficulty is kidney trouble, and the first step should be towards the treatment of these important organs. This unpleasant trouble is due to a diseased condition of the kidneys and bladder and not to a habit as most people suppose.

Women as well as men are made miser-able with kidney and bladder trouble, and both need the same great remedy. The mild and the immediate effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It is sold by druggists, in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also a pamphlet telling all about Swamp-Root, including many of the thousands of testi-monial letters received from sufferers who found Swamp-Root to be the re-medy needed. In writing Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., be sure and mention this paper. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

Poems Contributed in Loving Memory of Mrs. Wm. Sheehan Who Died April 10, 1910

Loved one, peaceful be thy slumber
In thy dreamless sleep,
While o'er thy early tomb
Loved ones are left to weep.
Only thy form we loved so well
Shall rest within the grave;
Thy spirit clothed in light
Returns to Him who gave.

Called from the service of the Lord,
Thy conflict ended and victory won,
Safe at home, O Christian mother,
Hear the Savior's sweet "Well done."
All thy pilgrim journey ended,
Given a victor's crown to wear,
Welcomed to thy Heavenly mansion,
All the joys of earth to share.

Loving wife, mother, sister, friend,
Farewell! No more on earth we meet;
But in Heaven we hope to greet thee,
And walk the shining street.
We will weep not—God knewest best—
Nor sink beneath the rod;
'Tis in the hand of a Father kind,
An all-wise loving God.

We miss thee from our home, dear mother,
We miss thee from thy place;
A shadow o'er our life is cast,
We miss the sunshine of thy face.

We miss thy kind and willing hand,
Thy fond and earnest care;
Our house is dark without thee,
We miss thee everywhere.

Fond husband and children are left behind
To mourn the loss of a dearest friend,
An indulgent mother, so good and kind,
Whom we hope to meet at this life's end.

Peaceful be they silent slumber,
Peaceful in thy grave so low;
Thou no more shall join our number,
Thou no more our sorrows know.

Yet again we hope to meet thee,
When the day of life is fled,
And in heaven with joy to greet thee,
Where no farewell tears are shed.

Card of Thanks

We take this means of thanking the friends who assisted in the burial of our father, and especially the singers who kindly furnished the music. F. M. Butters and family.

Tonic or Stimulant?

There is an immense difference between a tonic and a stimulant. Up one day, way back the next; that's a stimulant. Steady progress day by day, toward perfect health; that's a tonic. Ayer's Sarsaparilla is a tonic, a strong tonic. The only Sarsaparilla entirely free from alcohol. Do not stimulate unless your doctor says so. He knows. Ask him. Do as he says. J.C. At a meeting of the school directors held Wednesday evening for the purpose of hiring the teachers for the ensuing year, it was found that only one of the four teachers now employed had put in an application. Mr. Hodge was again hired for another year. Miss Lux and Mrs. Gaggin not wishing to continue in the work were replaced by Miss Deedie Tiffany in the primary room and Miss Belle Hughes in the intermediate room. Miss Williams has also resigned as teacher of the grammar room, but this vacancy has not as yet been filled. The past year has been one of the most harmonious and successful in the history of the school and it was with regret that the resignation of the three teachers was received, however their successors are young ladies of ability and we bespeak for them an equal amount of success in the work.

Stanley Miller, aged 10, of Libertyville, is in the McAlister hospital Waukegan where he is in a serious condition as the result of an explosion of a cartridge while he was playing with it in school Tuesday afternoon. The explosion injured him so that three fingers of his left hand were amputated, the right hand is badly mangled and his right eye is also seriously hurt. The boy's condition is critical. He pulled the cartridge out of his pocket while in school and its explosion created quite a panic in the room as it was feared somebody had been shot.

Recently one of Antioch's most fastidious young men, a decided blond by appearance, bought a pair of overalls and found in them the name of the sewing girl who made them. He very promptly wrote her a letter with all the effusiveness necessary in such a case and in due time received a reply, which however, was void of the romance usual in such cases. Here it is: "I am a working girl, it is true, but I make a good living and do not care to support a husband, as I would have to if I married some silly noodle who gets mashed on a girl he never saw. Permit me to say that I do not know how my card got into that pair of overalls and then when I do marry, if ever, it will be some fellow who can afford something better than a 47 cent pair of breeches."

NATIONAL CAPITAL AFFAIRS

When the Teachers Visit Washington

WASHINGTON.—The spring vacation is when the teachers swarm to Washington. They come from east, north, south and west. They are personally conducted, as a rule, as in the case of the Cleveland teachers here Easter week, and what they don't see is not worth seeing.

They go to the White House, and if they are lucky they get a glimpse of the president and possibly a handshake. Then they want to see Cannon. Cannon is on his best behavior on these occasions. He readily consents to make a little speech, as he did for the Clevelanders. All you have to do is go to his secretary and state your request.

"Well," says the secretary, "you have them here at so-and-so sharp. Mr. Cannon will be here."

Cannon comes out in his best "Uncle Joe" attitude. He bows and smiles and says, "Ah, yes, I'm glad to see you." And he talks in a low, confidential tone that is calculated to make the teachers think that anybody who opposes him is opposing a nice, kind old man. He admits some faults, but he tries to make his hearers believe that he isn't half as bad as he has been painted.

Clerk John Walker of the senate gets in on this, too. He tells the teachers about everything of interest in the capitol. He had 200 New Hampshire bunnies in one party recently. He took them into the rooms of the District of Columbia committee.

"This room is where the senate branch of the Washington council sits," he said. "Here are considered the improvements, the changes, the laws and the ordinances of the city of Washington. Look there at the picture of the Union station, which, beautiful and imposing, greeted you when you came to Washington. It looks like a classic temple of old, instead of the terminal of a thousand trains. Here is a map of the district, showing the magnificent plan upon which the city was conceived by L'Enfant."

"Then, too, behold the panorama of the harbor of Portsmouth, in our beloved New Hampshire, with its splendid navy yard, its picturesque islands and wooded slopes. This picture is Senator Gallinger's pride, just as Portsmouth is the pride of all the people of New Hampshire."

How a Secretary Was Made Miserable

SECRETARIES to congressmen take a really more interest in what the congressmen do than the congressmen themselves. The secretaries carefully weigh each word and act, to determine what the folks back home are going to think about it.

One secretary, a dyed-in-the-wool Republican, had always boasted that his chief was a regular of the regulars. These dogged, insubordinate would never get that congressman's vote, you betcher! Well, when they were lining up for Cannon that congressman did vote with the insurgents.

The secretary was plunged into deepest gloom. He couldn't understand it. He treated his chief with marked reserve for several days. He avoided the secretaries whom he had made his boast to. But one afternoon he chanced upon a group of them in the hall of the house office building.

"How about it?" they chirruped. "How about it, old sport?"

The unhappy secretary gave them one haughty look.

How Few Drinks Change a Man's Mood

SENATOR WARNER of Missouri rose to speak at a dinner that was being given by the Missouri Republican league in Washington recently. He had been introduced at some length, and rather sugary things had been said about him. Whatever brought the story to his mind he didn't say. Possibly it was that introduction.

"In a western town there was a village drunkard," said the senator. "I want to tell a story about him to illustrate what a change in a man's mood drink may make. This drunkard was often under the care of the village doctor. The doctor decided to move to Texas. The drunkard met him on the street in the morning before he had had a drink."

"Hello, doc," he said, "understand you're going to Texas. Well, I've got

Story of a Beggar and Congressman

A SOUTHERN congressman was walking toward Pennsylvania avenue from the capitol in Washington. He noticed a worn and shabby man eyeing him closely. When the congressman reached the slinky car the latter hailed him.

"You are a college man, sir," he said. "I can see that. May I speak to you a moment?"

The congressman obligingly slowed up his pace.

"I am a college man, too," said the stranger. "But I am down on my luck. I am offered a position, but I haven't got good enough clothes to accept it. I thought possibly you could help me temporarily. I will pay you back as soon as I get on my feet."

"No, I guess I can't do anything,"

said the congressman.

"Well, could you let me have a dollar? I am hungry."

The congressman quickened his walk.

"A quarter? Please, just a quarter."

"No, I guess not," said the congressman.

The stranger stopped and the congressman moved away. Then this was sent after him:

"Say, you haven't got a cigarette paper, have you?"

This is pretty bad, but we tell it because it is going the rounds.

"Rosenberg has gone into business," said Bartholdt of St. Louis, addressing Chapman and McKinney of Illinois.

"The dog business," Bartholdt added. "He's got a new dog. He calls him Hardward."

"Why such a name?" asked the other congressmen.

"When the grocery boy kicked at the dog this morning the dog made a bolt for the door," was Bartholdt's unblushing answer.

A PARADOX.

Manager—That drinking song went very badly tonight.
Stage Director—I know. The tenor had been drinking.

HIS HANDS CRACKED OPEN

"I am a man seventy years old. My hands were very sore and cracked open on the insides for over a year with large sores. They would crack open and bleed, itch, burn and ache so that I could not sleep and could do but little work. They were so bad that I could not dress myself in the morning. They would bleed and the blood dropped on the floor. I called on two doctors, but they did me no good. I could get nothing to do any good till I got the Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment. About a year ago my daughter got a cake of Cuticura Soap and one box of Cuticura Ointment and in one week from the time I began to use them my hands were all healed up and they have not been a mile, sore since. I would not be without the Cuticura Remedies."

"They also cured a bad sore on the hand of one of my neighbor's children, and they think very highly of the Cuticura Remedies. John W. Hasty, So. Effingham, N. H., Mar. 5 and Apr. 11, '09."

Where She Scored.

Sheldon Korshak tells this story on his esteemed father:

"One day a long time ago a number of children in our neighborhood were talking about the bad habits of their parents."

"My father smokes 15 cigars a day," said a little girl, boastfully like.

"My father swears something awful when supper is late," said another.

"My papa came home tight the other night," remarked a third.

"It was my little sister's turn next."

"You just ought to see my papa read Cleo," she said, and all the other little girls retired in confusion, gladly admitting that sister had won the prize.—Cleveland Leader.

No Encouragement.

The family had stood the long strain of Uncle Hobart's illness well, but the peculiarities of the physician, chosen by Uncle Hobart himself, had been, to say the least, trying. "Do you really think he will recover, Dr. Shaw?" asked the oldest sister of the invalid, who had borne with his vagaries patiently for years.

"I know how you feel, with Thanksgiving coming on and all," said the doctor, peering at her from under his shaggy eyebrows, "but it's too soon to tell. He may get well, and then again, he may not; I can't encourage you yet—either way."—Youth's Companion.

It Seemed So.

The little son of the family happened to be falling his time in the kitchen when the colored porter came up out of the cellar, where he had been shoveling coal into the heater, grasped the white towel hanging on the door and passed into the hall. For an instant the youth gazed awestruck at the coal dust impressions left on the towel, then yelled after the retreating negro:

"Oh, Sam, your color's coming off!"—Judge.

MISCHIEF MAKER

A Surprise in Brooklyn.

An adult's food that can save a baby proves itself to be nourishing and easily digested and good for big and little folks. A Brooklyn man says:

"When baby was about eleven months old he began to grow thin and pale. This was, at first, attributed to the heat and the fact that his teeth were coming, but, in reality, the poor little thing was starving. His mother's milk not being sufficient nourishment."

"One day after he had cried bitterly for an hour, I suggested that my wife try him on Grape-Nuts. She soaked two teaspoonfuls in a saucer with a little sugar and warm milk. This baby ate so ravenously that she fixed a second which he likewise finished."

"It was not many days before he forgot all about being nursed, and has since lived almost exclusively on Grape-Nuts. Today the boy is strong and robust, and as cute a mischief-maker as a thirteen months old baby is expected to be."

"We have put before him other foods, but he will have none of them, evidently preferring to stick to that which did him so much good—his old friend Grape-Nuts."

"Use this letter any way you wish, for my wife and I can never praise Grape-Nuts enough after the brightness it has brought to our household."

Grape-Nuts is not made for a baby food, but experience with thousands of babies shows it to be among the best, if not entirely the best in use. Being a scientific preparation of Nature's grains, it is equally effective as a body and brain builder for grown-ups.

Read the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. "There's a Reason."

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

The Important Problem

confronting anyone in need of a laxative is not a question of a single action only, but of permanently beneficial effects, which will follow proper efforts to live in a healthful way, with the assistance of Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna, whenever it is required, as it cleanses the system gently yet promptly, without irritation and will therefore always have the preference of all who wish the best of family laxatives.

The combination has the approval of physicians because it is known to be truly beneficial, and because it has given satisfaction to the millions of well-informed families who have used it for many years past.

To get its beneficial effects, always buy the genuine manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only.

The Literary Fabricator.

"How did that story that George Washington couldn't tell a lie get started?" asked the inquisitive youth.

"I don't know," replied the irreverent person; "unless he had a press agent that could."

Something Stronger Than Wind. Senator Depew, sponsor of March winds, said, at a dinner in Washington:

"An old-fashioned fellow, one year when Easter came in March, paid too many Easter calls and drank too many cups of eggnog, and, alas, was quite overcome."

"As the old-fashioned fellow lurched, in the late afternoon, toward home, a little girl watched him from her window, curiously."

"Oh, mamma," she said, "come and look at Mr. Stuyvesant. Isn't the wind blowing him about!"

AN UP-TO-DATE STOVE
Do you realize there is no longer any reason why you should use a coal range? Oil is cheaper than coal; it is lighter and easier to handle, and gives an intense heat. Provided you have the right stove, oil is more economical, cleaner and less trouble. Have you seen the

New Perfection
WICK BURNER STOVE
Oil Cook-stove

The accompanying illustration gives you only a rough idea of its appearance. You really can't appreciate it until you either use it yourself, or talk to someone who has used it. It does everything that a coal range will do—except heat the room. The New Perfection Oil Cook-stove will do anything, from heating a kettle of water to cooking a course dinner, but it won't heat a room. It doesn't "smell," it doesn't smoke. It can't get out of order. Light it and it is ready. Turn it down and it is out.

Only a woman who knows the trouble of carrying coal and cooking in a hot kitchen can appreciate what it means to have a clean, perfect stove that will cook anything, boil, bake or roast, and yet won't heat the kitchen. How is it done? The flame is controlled in turquoise-blue enamel chimneys, and directed against the bottom of pot, pan, kettle or oven, and only there. The flame operates exactly where it is needed—and nowhere else. With this stove your kitchen is cool.

The nickel finish with the bright blue of the chimneys makes the stove ornamental and attractive. Made with 1, 2 and 3 burners; the 2 and 3-burner stoves can be had with or without Cabinet.

Every garment maker in the U. S. has received a severe setback this season because of the unprecedented warm weather during March and thus far in April. Under normal climatic conditions the output of the factories would not have been more than adequate to meet the demands. As it is, manufacturers are overloaded with stock—particularly makers of coats, capes, suits, skirts, dresses, etc. As a natural sequence they are anxious to unload at almost any price in order to clear their floors of surplus stocks. "Coming Events Cast Their Shadows Before"—Friedmans were in the market with the Spot Cash to take up the best of these snaps.
